

ADHD Medication Shortage Memo: Easy-Read

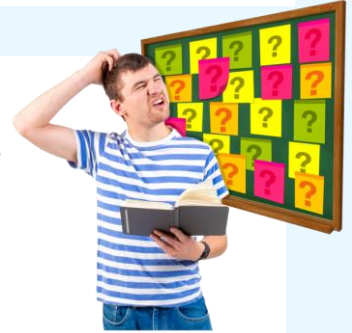

ADHD medication

You might be taking medication to help you think and do your daily tasks

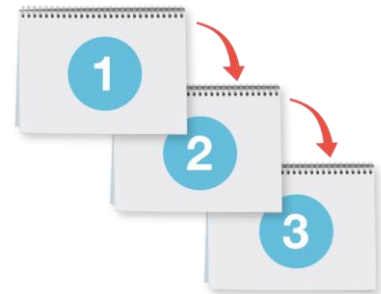

What's the problem?

There has been a problem getting enough of some types of ADHD medication into pharmacies. You might be unable to get enough tablets.

Why is this happening?

There is more than one reason. More people need the medication, and the people that make them have changed.

How long will this problem last?

There are some types of ADHD medication coming in. Check with your GP surgery, specialist team or pharmacy to find out if there are problems with your ADHD medication

What should I do?

- Speak to your pharmacist and GP if you are taking medication for ADHD.
- Order your medication 2 weeks before you run out
- If you have problems getting the medication, speak to your specialist
